Tales of Exeter and Beyond

The Bonnie Brea Orange Ranch, which in 1896, the Merrymans were its lead investors.

Join us on Monday, February 16, for our newest Tales of Exeter and Beyond with Dwight Miller. His talk this month is titled “The Merrymans of Marinette: The Men Who Bankrolled Exeter’s Citrus Boom” and will explore the backstories, motivations, and far-reaching impacts of A.C. and R.C. Merryman and why their impact still surrounds us today.

Most people recognize Merryman Station on Highway 198, just northeast of Exeter. It is currently a popular event venue. Far fewer know the people behind the names. Andrew Curtis Merryman and his son, Reuben Colburn Merryman were wealthy Wisconsin timber barons whose money and ambition helped launch Exeter’s citrus industry in the 1890s. Their influence stretched from Rocky Hill and Badger Hill to Marinette Avenue and rippled through the community for decades. Families like the Van Cleves and Borgmans followed in their wake, shaping Exeter well into the twentieth century.
